CARDIAC ELECTROPHYSIOLOGY

An electrophysiologist, also known as a cardiac electrophysiologist or cardiac EP, is a cardiologist who focuses on testing for and treating problems involving irregular heart rhythms, also known as arrhythmias. They examine your heart's electrical system, which sends an electrical signal through your cells in order to regulate heart rate and rhythm.

CARDIOLOGY

Cardiologists specialize in finding, treating and preventing diseases of the heart and blood vessels. An interventional cardiologist is trained in internal medicine with several additional years of training in cardiology. They specialize in diagnosing and treating cardiovascular disease, as well as congenital and structural heart conditions, through catheter-based procedures, such as angioplasty and stenting. Procedures may also involve device-based therapies like loop recorders, pacemakers and ICDs.

INTENSIVISTS

Intensivists direct and provide medical care in a hospital's intensive care unit (ICU). In addition, intensivists organize the communication between various doctors caring for a patient, and serve as the point of contact for other doctors and nurses for questions and updates and for delineating a comprehensive plan of care.

ONCOLOGY/RADIATION

Radiation Oncologists are members of the oncology team who treat cancer with radiation therapy. About 50 to 60 percent of cancer patients receive radiation at some time during their treatment. Located on the first floor of the Medical Office Building, the Radiation Oncology Center offers easy access to a wide range of radiation services including intensity modulated radiation therapy (IMRT), three-dimensional treatment planning, stereotactic body radiation therapy (SBRT) and brachytherapy (internal radiation).

Memorial provides some of the most advanced radiation techniques available today:

- ▲ Cyberknife® robotic radiosurgery system for certain types of brain, spine, lung, abdominal and pelvic tumors; one of only a few in the state
- ▲ TrueBeam® linear accelerator with image-guided radiation therapy (IGRT) and intensity-modulated radiation therapy (IMRT) to deliver radiation therapy with greater precision in less time.
- ▲ High-dose radiation (HDR) unit for internal radiation

REHABILITATION SERVICES

Physical, Occupational & Speech Therapy

Physical therapy is a specialized healthcare discipline focused on improving a person's physical function and mobility. It involves the assessment, diagnosis, and treatment of musculoskeletal and neuromuscular conditions, often through exercises, manual therapy, and other modalities.

Occupational therapy aims to help individuals regain independence in their daily activities, especially after injury or illness. Occupational therapists work on enhancing fine motor skills, cognitive abilities, and adapting the environment to facilitate optimal functioning.

Speech therapy, also known as speech-language pathology, assists individuals in improving their communication and speech skills. Speech therapists work with people of all ages to address speech disorders, language difficulties, voice problems, and swallowing disorders.
